an extent never before conceived in this State, and the cupidity of new York officials has even been eclipsed. Illiterate political habblers and crafty beggars have suddenly sprung into legislative life; and while the few prated, many plundered unnoticed, or, if detected, parcelled their spoils with the babblers. Influenced by no sentiments of honor, and restrained by no feeling of honesty, every fund raised or expended was subject to curtailment by a process new to est compunction of conscience, and squandered with a facility which baffled pursuit.
